The BOSTON Evening-Post.

Containing the freſheſt Advices, Foreign and Domeſtick.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

By a letter from the Hon. major general Gage, commander in chief of his Majeſty's forces in North-America, to the Earl of Halifax, one of his Majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, dated at New-York the 13th of December, 1764, the following advices have been received.

THE perfidy of the Shawneſe and Delawares, and their having broken the ties, which even the Savage nations hold ſacred among each other, required vigorous meaſures to reduce them. We had experienced their treachery ſo often, that I determined to make no peace with them, but in the heart of their country, and upon ſuch terms as ſhould make it as ſecure as it was poſſible. This conduct has produced all the good effects which could be wiſhed or expected from it. Thoſe Indians have been humbled, and reduced to accept of peace upon the terms preſcribed to them, in a manner as will give reputation to his Majeſty's arms amongſt the ſeveral nations. The regular and provincial troops under colonel Bouquet, having been joined by a good body of volunteers from Virginia, and others from Maryland and Pennſylvania, marched from Fort Pitt the beginning of October, and got to Tuſcarowas about the 15th. The march of the troops into their country, threw the Savages into the greateſt conſternation, as they had hoped their woods would protect them, and had boaſted of the ſecurity of their ſituation from our attacks. The Indians hovered round the troops during their march, but deſpairing of ſucceſs in an action, had recourſe to negotiations. They were told they might have peace, but every priſoner in their poſſeſſion muſt firſt be delivered up. They brought in near twenty, and promiſed to deliver the reſt; but as their promiſes were not regarded, they engaged to deliver the whole on the 1ſt of November, at the Forks of the Muſkingham, about 150 miles from Fort Pitt, the center of the Delawares towns, and near to the moſt conſiderable ſettlement of the Shawneſe. Colonel Bouquet kept them in ſight, and moved his camp to that place. He ſoon obliged the Delawares, and ſome broken tribes of Mohikons, Wiandots, and Mingoes, to bring in all their priſoners, even to children born of white women, and to tie thoſe who were grown as ſavage as themſelves, and unwilling to leave them, and bring them bound to the camp. They were then told that they muſt appoint deputies to go to Sir William Johnſon, to receive ſuch terms as ſhould be impoſed upon them, which the nations ſhould agree to ratify: And for the ſecurity of their performance of this, and that no further hoſtilities ſhould be committed, a number of their chiefs muſt remain in our hands. The above nations ſubſcribed to theſe terms; but the Shawneſe were more obſtinate. They did not approve of the conditions, and were particularly averſe to the giving of hoſtages: But finding their obſtinacy had no effect, and would only tend to their deſtruction, the troops having penetrated into the heart of their country, they at length became ſenſible, that there was no ſafety but in ſubmiſſion, and were obliged to ſtoop to the ſame conditions as the other nations.

They immediately gave up forty priſoners, and promiſed the reſt ſhould be ſent to Fort Pitt in the ſpring. This laſt not being admitted, the immediate reſtitution of all the priſoners being the ſine qua non of peace, it was agreed, that parties ſhould be ſent from the army into their towns, to collect the priſoners, and conduct them to Fort Pitt. They delivered ſix of their principal chiefs as hoſtages into our hands, and appointed their deputies to go to Sir William Johnſon in the ſame manner as the reſt. The number of priſoners already delivered exceeds two hundred, and it was expected that our parties would bring in near one hundred more from the Shawneſe towns. Theſe conditions ſeem ſufficient proofs of the ſincerity & humiliation of thoſe nations: And in juſtice to colonel Bouquet, I muſt teſtify the obligations I have to him; and that nothing but the firm and ſteady conduct, which he has obſerved in all his tranſactions with thoſe treacherous ſavages, would ever have brought them to a ſerious peace.

I now flatter myſelf, that the country is reſtored to its former tranquility, and that a general, and it is to be hoped, laſting peace is concluded with all the Indian nations, who have taken up arms againſt his Majeſty.

SURELY it is becoming the "true character" of every sincere friend to his country "honestly" to point out to the public whatever is detrimental to its true interest; and no man, I believe, that has the least spark of public spirit, will dispute this; especially when it is done with a view of such evils being redressed.—What a "virulent" spirit, then, does Mr. N. G. discover in his attempt in the last Monday's Gazette to oppose himself to plain matters of fact; which are acknowledged by every unprejudiced mind to be diametrically oppofite to the public interest!—For I would ask any man, not bigotted to a party, what advantage it can be to the public to have an annual muster of 3 or 4000 spectators; to behold what? Why 20 or 30 men chuse a Captain, Lieutenant, Ensign, and a few Subalterns: Is not the town thereby deprived of the labor of at least three fourths of this number, which, computing at 4*s.* the day, amounts to 600*l.* lawful money; besides a fund appropriated to their use by the government, at or about the time of their incorporation (being then adjudged of some service to the common cause) but whether this may not now be applied to some better purpose is left to the wisdom of our next general assembly to determine.—And besides all this, I would ask any one of this ancient body corporate whether he would subject himself to half the inconveniences that some individuals submit themselves to on their account: I shall, for brevity's sake, only instance in one particular at present; in which I have reference to the Gentleman "once a year" chosen to preach before them;—Is it not a great inconvenience for a man to travel 20, 30, 40, 50, or an hundred miles, leaving his own flock destitute, or be oblig'd to get somebody else to supply his place during his absence? and, on the other hand, I cannot see what inducement any Gentleman has to submit to such an inconvenience: Surely it cannot be out of charity; for no one of this company will deny, but that he has the gospel preached to him every Sabbath day. Is he induced by the hopes of gain? So far from this, that I think he cannot possibly promise himself any temporal advantage; seeing he is obliged to bear his own expences, let the journey be ever so long and tedious.—In short, what can be his motive I am at a loss to determine—except honor be the thing; but if any man will say, that this is not very likely, and will produce something more plausible than any of these, I will allow it to be that; but till he does, I must remain at an uncertainty.

LONDON, Feb. 12.

WE hear that four experienced sugar refiners have engaged for South Carolina, to embark immediately.

We are assured that an additional duty on Stamps is to take place in all the British colonies in America.

There is a report of some alterations being to be made in the duties on tobacco.

Feb. 20. We are informed, since the plantation agents have failed in opposing the present duty on American stamps, a motion is preparing to be made in the house, that the commissioners for the receipt of this duty may be appointed from the natives of each province, where the tax is to take place.

It is said that 25,000 l. sterling is the equivalent proposed to be given to the present proprietor of the Isle of Man, on its being annexed to the crown.

Feb. 28. It is reported that instructions have been sent to our Governors of the late acquired colonies in America; to keep exact registers of the French subjects residing there, and to transmit the same, from time to time, to England.

Yesterday orders were given for scaffolding to be erected in Westminster-hall, for the trial of Lord Byron, against the 16th of April next.

Letters from Paris bring advice, that the famous Mr. Wilkes has left that capital very abruptly, and very much in debt. Something worse is alledged against him, but of what nature is not hinted----Where he is gone no person can tell; but a very diligent search is making after him.

We hear a patent will soon be made out, in favor of an eminent English actor, who intends to establish a play house in New York.

On the 14th inst. about eleven o'clock, Mr. John Williams, bookseller, was brought, pursuant to his sentence, from the King's bench prison, to stand in the pillory in New palace yard, for re-publishing the North Briton, No. 45, in volumes. It is remarkable, that the coach which carried him there, was No. 45. A few minutes after twelve he mounted, amidst the repeated acclamations of upwards of ten thousand people, who never ceased shouting till his hour was expired. Opposite to the pillory were erected four ladders with cords running from each other, on which were hung a jack boot, an axe, and a Scotch bonnet. The two latter, after remaining there some time, were burnt, & the boot beheaded. During his standing also, a purple purse, very richly ornamented with ribbons of an orange colour, was produced by a gentleman noted for his patriotism, who began a collection in favor of the culprit, by putting a guinea into it himself, after which the purse being carried round, every body contributed according to his own fancy, to the amount in the whole of upwards 200 guineas; one gentleman, it is said gave 50 guineas. Mr. Williams, at getting into the pillory, and at getting out, politely bowed to the spectators. He held a sprig of laurel in his hand all the time. When he returned to the prison in the hackney-coach, No. 45, which drove him from thence and waited all the time, he asked the coachman what was his demand, who replied he would not take any thing; but Mr. Williams insisting upon paying him, the coachman warmly declared, the honor of driving him on that occasion, was a sufficient reward for his trouble, and absolutely refused any payment.

It is now said that the future use of Stills in the British American provinces, except in cases of chymistry and medicine, will this session be prohibited under an high penalty.

A total stop to the exportation of American bever and furs to France and Holland, is very quickly expected to take place.

Last week 1200l. sterl. were laid out on commission from North America, in the purchase of mens cloaths, and wearing apparel, proper for introducing the English dress among the several tribes of Indians at the back of our settlements.

His grace the Duke of Athol has made strong representations against annexing the Isle of Man to the crown, it being granted to his predecessors by royal charter, and confirmed in other King's reigns.

Five thousand pounds are to be added to the rewards already offered by parliament for those who shall discover the longitude at sea.

March 2. They write from Berlin that the King's orders for recruiting the troops, & compleating the defective regiments, have been executed with such rapidity and success, that his Majesty will have early in the spring a fresh and well-disciplined army of 160,000 men, ready to observe or to act, as occasion may require. This circumstance will give a singular degree of weight to the triple alliance, which is now said to be on the carpet, and which, if it become quadruple, by the accession of another great power, will render the family compact a matter of perfect indifference to those who otherwise might have looked upon it as an object worthy of some attention. The designed voyage of this Monarch to Cleves early in the spring, occasions speculation.

It is said a strenuous opposition is intended to be made to the motion for introducing church dignities in North-America.

General Loudohn is so dangerously ill in Bohemia, that his recovery was not expected.

They write from Brest, that one 40 gun ship and three frigates were ordered to superintend the French fishery this ensuing season, on the banks of Newfoundland.

It is said that 1,400,000l. will be raised by annuities and a lottery; and that there will be two lotteries for 700,000 l. Each lottery to consist of 35,000 tickets at 10l. each, one to be drawn in May, & the other in November; the whole to consist of three per cent. annuities, redeemable by parliament.

We are informed, that an eminent divine in this city has lately received, in a letter from a clergyman of great veracity in Virginia, the following particulars relating to the state of religion in that country. "It would be unpardonable in me to past by the state of religion in this country to a gentleman of your known attachment to its interests. I wish I could give you some account that would be agreeable: but, alas! we are torn by factions and divisions. Virginia is no more the seat of peace and concord, but of madness and enthusiasm. The methodists from the north came down upon us like a torrent; and I can see no method so effectual of preventing their growth, as dispersing books in favour of the church, among our people; which proposal I wish the society (for promoting christian knowledge) would take into their serious consideration, especially as the indifferent circumstances of the clergy of this country in general will not enable them to purchase."

We are informed a few ships of war are ordered to cruize between Cape Florida and the west end of Cuba, for the security of the English navigation in the gulf.

We have been favoured with an Account of many Circumstances relating to the passing the Stamp Bill in the House of Commons, but it came to Hand too late for this Week's Paper. By this Account we find the Matter has been greatly misrepresented in all our Papers, copied from the Boston Papers.----The Bill having been most strenuously opposed by many excellent Speakers in the House, where it passed but by a small Majority, and contrary to the general Sense of the People in England.

[The Boston Papers never undertook to say what Debates there were in the House of Commons at the passing of the Stamp Act, having had no Account of that Event: The Bill was to have had a first Reading but on the 12th of February, and we have had no Advice what was done in the Matter after the Bill was brought in.]

NEWPORT, April 29.

By several letters from London, we learn, That the addresses from the colonies were wrote with such warm and unbecoming expressions, that it would have been dangerous to have presented them to parliament: That when the house of commons entred upon the consideration of the colonies, Mr. G-----le said much upon the subject, and with great moderation; that after he had shewn the equity and necessity of taxing the colonies, he expressed much concern at the undue spirit of the addresses, but forbore to be particular, lest it should exasperate the house, and requested they would proceed with coolness and moderation. Mr. C-----s T----nd also spoke, and confirmed the equity of the taxation, mentioned the small proportion the colonies had borne in the war, the advantages obtained for them by the mother country, at a vast expence, and that they were under the strongest ties of gratitude to aid and assist her. Col. Barry confirmed the equity of the taxation, but doubted whether the colonies were in a capacity to pay it, and seemed inclinable to favour them.

Upon a division in the House of Commons, relating to the Resolves about the stamp duty, there were 245 for them, and only 49 against them.

We hear from Groton, in Connecticut, that on Wednesday last Mr. James Packer, of that place, having made a fire of some brush, which endangered his barn, went in to prevent its catching the straw, &c. but before he could get out was supposed to have been suffocated with the smoke, the barn having took fire, which was entirely consumed, and himself perished therein. He was about 90 years old.

Extract of a Letter from a young Gentleman at Georgia.

"Agreeable to your Desire, I have been to see Mr. Whitefield's Orphan-House, and will as near as I know give you a Description thereof. It consists of four elegant Fronts, with a Piazza all around, a very neat Chapel in it, two very handsome Parlours and Chambers over them, for Mr. Whitefield's own Use, it has on the same Flour with his Chambers four others very handsome; there is a genteel Dining-Hall for the Orphans, on the Ground Floor, and a small neat well chosen Library, principally Books of Divinity. The other Story is a long Range of Chambers commodious for the Orphans, with good Feather Beds: About 40 Yards from the House is the School, a neat small Building, the Stables, Store-houses and Negro Houses: There is the most elegant Garden in the Country, which is before the Front which faces the Road: The Parlours and Chambers are all very handsomely furnished with Pictures, all at the Expence of Mr. Whitefield: It is governed by two Gentlemen of Mr. Whitefield's Appointment, who are Preachers without Orders, and the Morning Service is that of the Church of England, and the Evening Presbyterian; One of the Gentlemen has the care of the Plantation in the Week, and the other of the School.—This Plantation produces 150 Casks of Rice yearly, besides Boards, and Silk worth about 160*l.* sterling, also Indigo to the Value of 150*l.* sterling more. All Strangers on a Visit are entertained very handsomely gratis. But at present it can scarcely be called an Orphan-House, as there are but 5 Boys therein, Mr. Whitefield having put all out that were fit, when he was here last: He has now given it to the Province of Georgia for a College, together with 2000*l.* to be laid out in some additional Buildings for Lodgings to the Scholars, with a Reserve to himself of appointing 10 poor Youths as Servitors to the rest, and to be educated with them.---Mr. Whitefield when here last had it attested on Oath by the Tradesmen's Bills that built the Orphan-House that it cost him 12,800*l.* sterl. Many sensible People say that if it had not been for this House, the Province would have been deserted; for the new Settlers (poor People) had recourse here, after their Work was done, to good Lodgings and Provisions on free Cost. On the whole I think it does Mr. Whitefield great Honour, and far surpasses any Idea of Him."——

We hear from Stafford, that a few days ago a Ewe, belonging to Mr. Nathan Johnson of that Place, brought forth at one Birth, Four Lambs, which are all likely to live.

We hear from South Brimfield in this Province, that a Farmer there who was Owner of fourteen Ewes thirteen of which bro't him lately twenty six Lambs, and the fourteenth brought four Lambs; likewise a Cow brought two Calves, all alive and likely to do well.

We hear that the DUDLEIAN Lecture at Harvard-College on Wednesday next, is to begin at Three o'Clock Afternoon.

One Day last Week an Experiment was made to recover a young Kitten to Life which had been drowned in a Tub of Water, and to all Appearance dead above half an Hour:---It was performed by only laying it before a Fire and covering it over with common Salt, rubbing it gently over the Body for some considerable Time, upon which it began to revive, and the rubbing being continued, stretch'd out its Paws one after the other, and upon vomiting up a Quantity of Water, recovered so as to crawl about and make a Noise, and being carried to its Dam, sucked and appeared as well as ever.

A Ship from Newcastle, but last Falmouth in 56 Days, bound to this Place, put into Newbury last Week. Capt. Edwards in another Ship left Newcastle about the same Time with the above Vessel, also bound hither.

LONDON, Feb. 26.

Private letters from Madrid mention, that a coldneſs between the Catholic Miniſtry, and his Excellency the Earl Rochford, had for ſome time paſt been viſible; the reaſons for which were not known, though conjectures had placed it to the account of the Britiſh Ambaſſador's having pretty warmly demanded an anſwer to a plain queſtion relating to the payment of the Manilla ranſom.

The public may reſt perfectly ſatisfied that theſe kingdoms very ſpeedily and moſt certainly will, or will not, be involved in another bloody and expenſive war.

It is confidently ſaid that the important affair of the Manilla ranſom will ſpeedily be inveſtigated in a great aſſembly, when the principal officers employed in that expedition will be ſummoned to attend; after which a delivery of hoſtages on the part of Spain, or an immediate payment of the capitulation bills, will be the final alternatives propoſed by Great Britain, to the court of Madrid, previous to certain vigorous diſpoſitions now upon the tapis.

The write from Vienna, that the unhappy city of Commora, which was almoſt demolithed laſt year by an earthquake, had been viſited again the latter end of laſt month by ſeveral more ſhocks, which had put the inhabitants into the greateſt conſternation.

At the meeting of the commiſſioners of bankruptcy, when Mr. Kearſly (who had been abroad ſome months) ſurrendered to the ſtatute, the celebrated Mr. Foote appeared as a creditor, and was of no little ſervice to Mr. Kearſly in throwing the company into good humour, and remonſtrating on Mr. Kearſly's having fallen a martyr to the cauſe of liberty. He began his oration with "Gentlemen, "it is a very common caſe for a bookſeller to be "ſeen amongſt the creditors of an author, but for "once—ſtrange to tell! you ſee an author amongſt "the creditors of a bookſeller."

From the NEW YORK Gazette, May 6. 1765.

Extract from the votes and proceedings of the General Aſſembly of the Colony of New-York, July 25. 1711.

CAPT. Garton reported from the committee of grievances to whom the petition of Col. John Schuyler and John Viſcher were committed, that they had ſent for Mr. Davis, and heard & conſidered his allegations, and come to a reſolution, which was read and agreed to by the houſe, and is as follows, viz. Reſolved, That the ſeizure of the goods, wares and merchandizes of the ſaidpetitioners, was, & is illegal, of ill conſequence, contrary to the faith of this government, publickly given, to the great injury of the petitioners, and the reſt of his Majeſty's ſubjects trading in this colony; and humbly pray this houſe to addreſs his Excellency for the taking the ſaid Mr. Davis in arreſt, till he the ſaid Davis reſtore the ſaid goods, with damages ſuſtained to the ſaid petitioners.

Ordered, That Capt. Renſſelaer and Mr. Livingſton, do attend his Excellency with the addreſs of this houſe, humbly deſiring the petitioners may be relieved, purſuant to the reſolve of this houſe.

Capt. Renſſelaer and Mr. Livingſton, reported, they had attended his Excellency, with the addreſs of this Houſe, relating the report from the committee of grievances. To which his Excellency was pleaſed to anſwer: That he was of the ſame opinion with the Houſe: That the Seizure is illegal: And conſidering that the matter is now depending at common law, he could not recall it; but that he would endeavour that the ſame ſhould be ſpeedily tried and determined.

JUNE 12. 1724.

——COMPLAINT having been made to this houſe of ſeveral hardſhips impoſed on the good ſubjects of this province, in ſeizing their goods tranſported from the city of New-York, to the cities, towns and places within this province, by water, or land, and extorting divers ſums of money from them, under ſeveral pretences, as well as threatning to ſeize the veſſels tranſporting ſuch goods.

A motion was made that a bill be brought into this houſe to prevent ſuch pernicious practices.——

Which was accordingly done, and paſſed into a law on the 24th of July, 1724, and is entitled, An ACT to prevent boats and other veſſels, and the goods put on board them, from being interrupted, whilſt their navigation is confined within this colony only.

Which law ſtands in force this day.

QUERE, Whether Mr. Surveyor-General, who lives in Boſton, was apprized of this law when he gave Mr. John Fenton the Deputy-Collectorſhip of Hudſon's river, between New-York and Albany.

We are told ſome ſeizures have lately been made at Albany by John Fenton, Eſq; collector for that port, in purſuance of his commiſſion.
